

Chisinau Declaration

Rural areas are caught between the impact of growing deregulation in agricultural markets, the changing structure of agriculture, the rising scarcity of resources and the demands of an increasingly urban population. The deregulation of markets and technical progress are leading to a further drop in the number of jobs available in traditional agricultural production. At the same time, diversification into activities directly associated with farming and secondary incomes are gaining importance.

In order to maintain the vitality of rural areas, the CLGE has decided to help the member countries to reach that goal through Land Re-allotment and Land Consolidation works, done by the surveyors in the public and/or the private sectors.
